CAREER OPPORTUNITIES IN CAPITAL MARKET

Vijay Prakash Srivastava

For a common man banks are the most familiar financial institutions which are used to deposit and withdraw money and to avail loans. Banks branches are widely spread and offer their services to both rich and poor. When it comes to careers, these banks, both public and private, have offered employment to thousands of young people. Banking is considered to be a good career option in our country.

Banks deal into money. Along with banks there are other institutions also involved in the business of money and finances. Such institutions come under the ambit of capital market which keeps expanding with economic growth. There are different financial instruments traded in this capital market. These include bonds, equity shares, debentures, call money, derivatives, commodity indices, futures and options etc.

Explanation for these terms can be easily found in books on financial management and of course on internet.

Capital market consists of primary capital markets and secondary capital markets. Primary capital markets deal with trade of fresh issues of stocks and other securities, whereas secondary capital market deals with the exchange of existing or previously issued securities. On business related TV channels you might have come across the strip showing running prices of stocks. Many of these stocks were first offered to investors 50-60 years ago and are still being traded albeit for a different price. The price of such securities depends on market sentiments, state of the economy, demand, quality of the company management and future prospects. This example is given to highlight the long term and dynamic nature of capital markets.

The primary capital market grows on the strength of secondary capital market.

Capital market is a market where buyers and sellers come together to trade financial securities like bonds, stocks, etc. These days most of such trade is done electronically/on line. This market has both institutional and individual buyers. Capital markets come within the financial sector.

A healthy and growing Capital Market attracts both domestic and foreign investment which is necessary for the growth of economy. Governments usually don't interfere in such markets but regulating it becomes necessary to protect the interests of investors and curb unfair trade practices. Ministry of Finance, Reserve Bank of India, Securities and Exchange Board of India keep a watch on the capital markets. Then there are specific regulators for particular businesses.

The pre budget economic survey released on 29th January 2018 promises the country's Gross Domestic Product (GDP) growth rate to be 7.5 percent during the financial year of 2018-19. Thus we can be sure that our economy shall be buoyant and so shall be the capital markets.

Except for general positions like customer service associates etc. all other job roles in capital market require specific knowledge and study. A simple graduation may help you to get a bank job but such is not the case with capital markets. Here you need specific qualifications.

The following qualifications can help you make a good career in capital market-

Postgraduation in Commerce: Commerce has always been a popular subject of study for students of 10+2 onwards. Masters degree in Commerce (M.Com) can be pursued at most of the universities and colleges

FAST DEEPENING WATER CRISIS CAN WE AFFORD TO IGNORE IT?

S.P. Sharma

There goes a very famous anecdote. Once upon a time, there lived a king who possessed a very vast empire. The king was very much fond of hunting. On a certain day, the king, with his cavalcade and a huge retinue of servants and courtiers, set out for preying into a dense forest. Hunting kept the king busy and the day went on passing until the sun rose to a very scorching noon. Having felt very thirsty, the king started heading back hurriedly in search of some natural streams of drinking water. But all efforts of the king to find water for quenching his thirst went in vain.

As was the king in frenzy, he found some clouds of smoke billowing from a hut at some distant place. The eyes of the king shone with renewed hope. He rushed to the hut and found a hermit sitting immersed in deep meditation. The king mustered his courage and made a humble prayer to the hermit, "O great sage, please forgive me to intervene into your deep meditation. I am the king of the empire you live in but now am very miserable. I am very much thirsty. I am dying of thirst. Please give me some water so that I can quench my thirst."

"I need to struggle hard every day to fill up the pitcher with water. It is only for my use. I cannot share even a single drop of it with anyone, however the great person he or she may be. Go and search for it somewhere else", the hermit refused the request of the king without any compunction.

"I cannot afford to search more for water. My energy has drained away. Please give me a little water so that I can save my life," the king again made earnest request.

The king became very much disappointed. He made the last desperate effort,

"O kind sage, give me some water and I can pay the price as much as you wish. I am ready even to offer you my entire empire which I have won at the huge cost of massacre of so many innocent lives and unfathomable personal sacrifices. If I die due to extreme thirst then what is the value of the empire for me?"

"So the value of your entire kingdom equals to only a few glasses of water! Shame on you! Shame on your empire and your kingship!" the hermit replied philosophically and offered him heart-content water. This event of life proved to be an eye-opener for the king and the realization of vital significance of water in the sustenance of the mankind taught him the lesson which he had never imagined of.

In fact, the aforesaid anecdote is not simply a story of a king and his search for water to satisfy his thirst. The story needs to be read between the lines and the message which becomes crystal clear is - water is the most precious asset on the earth that gives sustenance to the entire creatures on the earth planet. The story is also a reflection on the bitter truth that no amount of wealth can purchase water, the offering postgraduate courses spread all across the country.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES...

Masters in Business Administration with specialization in Finance:

Importance of MBA qualification is known to every aspirant of a corporate job. Few universities have named their business courses as Masters in Management Studies (MMS). Two years full time Postgraduate Diploma in Management as offered by Indian Institute of Management (Ahmedabad/ Bengaluru/ Kolkata/Indore/ Lucknow/ Shillong/Rohtak/ Kashipur/ Tiruchirapalli and at few other centres) is a much sought after course. Finance is one of the main specializations offered in business management courses. Also available are courses like Masters in Financial Management in which specialization is already defined. Admission to management courses are made through Common Aptitude Test (CAT), Management Aptitude Test (MAT), AIMS Test for Management Admissions (ATMA) etc. Some institutes like Manipal Academy of Higher Learning, a deemed university, conduct their own entrance tests.

Narsee Monjee Institute of Management Studies (NMIMS) at Mumbai offers MBA in Capital Markets. Institute of Technology

& Management (ITM), Navi Mumbai conducts a Postgraduate Diploma in Financial Markets. There may be few more such courses.

Make sure that the business course you choose has the approval of All India Council for Technical Education (AICTE)/Universities Grants Commission (UGC).

Chartered Accountancy: This is a well known course administered by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India (ICAI).

Cost & Management Accountancy: The Institute of Cost Accountants of India offers this course which to some extent is similar to a course in Chartered Accountancy.

Company Secretary: Institute of Company Secretaries of India (ICSI) conducts this course.

Chartered Financial Analyst: The course has an international identity. It is run globally by the CFA Institute based in the United States of America. It means that one can do this course in India without leaving the country.

CIMA Certified Professional: Chartered Institute of Management Accountants is a body of professionals with origin in United Kingdom. It offers Certificate in Business Accounting and Certification as Chartered Management Global Accountant which can be completed in India.

All the above courses (Chartered accountancy and below) are offered usually under self study mode with facility of contact classes.

Higher qualifications in Economics, Data Analytics etc. may also come handy for jobs in capital market. Those with background in information technology are also in demand as use of technology is on rise and technological innovations are taking place everywhere including capital markets.

Following are few of the institutes offering distinct valuable courses for entry to the Capital Markets:

Bombay Stock Exchange (BSE) jointly with Mumbai University conducts Masters in Global Financial Markets and Masters in Financial Technology. BSE Institute has many short term programmes also as listed on their website.

National Institute of Securities Market (NISM) was established in the year 2006 by SEBI, the securities market regulator for the country. It has its main campus at Patalganga near Mumbai. It conducts full time programmes leading to Postgraduate Diploma in Management (Securities Markets), Postgraduate Programme in Securities Markets, Postgraduate Diploma in Quantitative Finance. Part time programmes include Certificate in Treasury Management, Certificate in Securities Law, Postgraduate Diploma in Financial Engineering and Risk Management. The Institute also conducts a number of Short term and certification programmes.

Credit Rating Information System of India Limited, now CRISIL, offers a two years work-cum-study programme to develop finance professionals. This is known as CRISIL Certified Analyst Programme.

As a qualified professional you have varied career opportunities in Capital Markets. Some of the areas you may consider to work in, are described below:

Equity Markets: There are broking houses which carry trade in equities for self and on behalf of their clients. They need equity analysts to evaluate performance and potential of stocks/shares. Based on this analysis decision regarding sale/purchase of shares is taken and recommendations to clients are also made.

Mutual Funds: Mutual Funds collect money from individuals and other entities for investing in stocks, bonds and debt instruments etc. They offer variety of schemes as per customer preferences and their risk appetite. There are a large number of mutual fund operators in our country whose workforce consists mainly of equity analysts and fund managers. Unit Trust of India is a leading mutual fund company of our country. List of other mutual funds can be accessed from the website of Association of Mutual Funds in India.

Wealth Management: High net worth individuals, companies and trusts etc. appoint wealth managers to seek considered advice and take care of their investments. It is common for industrialists, big film, stars, sportspersons etc. to engage wealth management professionals.

Investment Banking: This is a lucrative area and is equally challenging. Investment Banking is different from common banking services. Investment banks work as financial intermediaries specializing in large and complex financial transactions such as underwriting, acting as an intermediary between a securities issuer and the investing public, facilitating mergers and acquisitions, and acting as financial advisor for institutional clients. Barclays, Bank of America, Merrill Lynch, Goldman Sachs, Deutsche Bank, JP Morgan, Morgan Stanley, Credit Suisse, Citibank and Lazard are well known global names in Investment Banking. Kotak Investment Banking is among leading Indian operators. Some investment banks specialize in particular industry sectors.

Merchant Banking: Few roles are common for investment bankers and merchant bankers. Merchant banking involves managing issues of initial public offering and rights issue of equities, bonds etc., raising finance for clients, restructuring and rehabilitation of business/industry, project management services, portfolio management etc. SBI Capital, ICICI Securities Limited, IDBI Capital Markets, Tata Capital Markets Limited, J M Financials, Bajaj Capital, Yes Bank Limited, Edelweiss Capital are among top merchant bankers in India.

Rating agencies: Many of the financial instruments like debentures, fixed deposits offered by companies, bonds etc. need to carry their rating by a recognized rating agency. This rating is a kind of risk profiling of the instrument and an indication how good or bad is the instrument from risk's point of view. CRISIL, CARE, ICRA are the leading rating agencies operating in our country. Moody's, Standard & Poor's, Fitch Ratings are few of the reputed global rating agencies.

Audit: Regulatory guidelines have been in existence for financial transactions and companies have to report the findings of audit and compliance thereon. There are various firms which engage people for audit of their clients. These include Indian as well as global firms.

Taxation: Both individuals and companies are required to ensure that tax on earnings and other transactions are paid as per law of the land. With introduction of Goods and Services Tax (GST), tax structure and accounting etc. have been rationalized. Taxation can be one area for a specialized career in capital markets.

Consulting firms: With your knowledge of capital markets and its operations, you may join a consulting company. There are home grown consulting firms as well as global ones. These firms may be offering their services in multiple disciplines like financial restructuring, taxation, audit etc. Deloitte, Ernest & Young, Price Waterhouse are counted among biggest consulting firms operating globally. Such firms have better opportunities for experienced professionals.

Academics and Media: Career opportunities can also be explored in teaching, training and in media. Teaching jobs may be available at Universities, commerce and management colleges etc. Media related careers can be found with leading business/financial dailies and with business news channels.

If you want to work on your own, you may choose to be a sub broker or an independent consultant in the area of your choice. It is advisable to gain some practical work experience before you launch yourself.

Traits for success

To do well in your capital market career you should develop affinity with numbers, eye for detail and analytical ability. You should work on ethical principles with high regard for compliance of laws, rules and regulations. This article makes mention of many institutes offering programmes useful for making a career in capital market and places where related opportunities are available. Details about these can be had from their websites.

FAST DEEPENING...

essence of existence of life.

"Water is the most critical resource issue of lifetime and our children's lifetime. The health of our water is the principal measure of how we live on the land", so said Luna Bergere Leopold, the famous US geomorphologist. There is no denying the fact that water makes most important of all the ingredients which help sustain the lives of the Homo sapiens as well as flora and fauna on the earth planet. It is also the root of the existence of all the moral, ethical, aesthetical and spiritual values and the engine of the sustainability of the world culture and civilization.

But unfortunately with the soaring global population, which has increased more than double over the period of past seven decades, the availability of water, especially for the drinking purposes, to the common masses has turned out to be one of the biggest crises of the modern-age-Homo-sapiens of the 21st century. Moreover, water accessibility to global population has also been plummeting to the newer low with each passing year. And nothing can be worse and more critical when we take into account the level of underground water which is going down and down every year.

How much critical and disappointing the scenario of water crisis can be for the human beings is so dangerously reflected when media very recently published a report with terrible and panicking images of the people of Sao Paulo, the most industrialized Brazilian city, once called as the city of drizzle, with not more than the population of 13 million. The residents of the city had to face such a severe drought very recently that they had begun digging and drilling their houses' basements, floors and even vehicles' parking places to reach out to the underground water.

The readers of this horrible report and threatening images might have not felt the sense of déjà vu of the ordeal and the nightmare the Brazilian city inhabitants had to undergo but the lessons are very clear for the understanding of which one need not be a rocket scientist - water is life, no water means no trace of life, the world is sitting on the cusp of waging the ugliest and the severest ever civil war over the issue of usurping the lion's share of water in the imminent years to come - the very elixir of the survival of the mankind on the earth, the very essence of the survival of the flora and fauna on the earth. Also the writing is very clear on the wall for the existence of lives on the earth.

Water covers more than two-thirds, that is approximately 70 percent of the earth planet areas. It does never mean that we have so much sufficient water as much we need for the smooth running of life. It is because of the fact that only 3 percent of the entire global water is fresh drinking water. This is not the beginning of the end of the saga of distress and dilemma. The two-thirds of the total of 3 per cent of fresh water get stuck or trapped away in glaciers and so we are left with meagre 1 per cent of fresh water for the daily basic human activities to the various applications in all the three sectors of the economy, producing goods and services.

If mere one percent of nearly 70 percent water on the earth planet rests for the use and falls within the accessibility of the mankind and other creatures on the earth, we can easily guess the ferocity of the water crisis across the nations in the world. It is very much bewildering that as many as 1.2 billion people, a little over as that of India's population, are deprived of access to water. And a total of 3 billion people, more than the population of India and China put together, are cursed to suffer from the acute water shortage for at least one month in a year. The sad story of the sufferings of the people due to water crisis does not cease here only.

The critical condition of both the availability and accessibility of water also tells on the plight of sanitation in the world. Lack of sufficient water makes the people vulnerable to a string of water-borne diseases like those of cholera, diarrhoea, typhoid fever and several others. The medical science says that more than 90 percent of the diseases which the mankind is likely to suffer from have their roots to contaminated and unsafe drinking water. It also deserves a mention here that as many as two million people, mostly children, die every year from diarrhoea, a contaminated-water-borne-disease.

Drought now has become more usual and most common natural global phenomenon. Floods are inundating most uncommon cities and towns across the world. Abrupt climatic changes have aggravated the situation even more. Half of the total wetland areas of the world has been destroyed over the past seven decade which does not augur well for the earth considering the fact that these wetlands, which make most potential nurseries of the development of human civilization and growth of diverse nature of weird notice pasted on it which reads as, "The world's most dangerous animal". When the visitors enter into the cage they find a man-size mirror in which they see their reflections. The message is very clear: For all the natural catastrophes and the whole gamut of crises which the world population is suffering from, it is only man and only the man and his undying lusts that are to be held responsible and guilty.

So like other crises, water crisis too is man-made. We have ignored the life-sustaining crucial role of water on the earth. Hence the solution also lies in the sincere endeavours made by the mankind only. The most important and urgent step is to bring about holistic paradigm changes in our mindset and insight. We first need to visualize the dangers which are so perniciously looming large over our very existence due to water scarcity. We need to visualize the horrifying world scenario when we would be left with no water resource on the earth and we would be rendered cursed to die altogether.

The Slovakian proverb says that pure water is the world's first and foremost flora and fauna, work as a shield for the people against storms, droughts, floods and other natural calamities. The destruction of wetlands is also the matter of worries because they substantially nourish the production of rice, the staple diet of almost half of the population of the world.

Water crisis is only one and the problems and dilemma are galore, the wider repercussions of which are so obviously visible on the various segments of the economy, ecology and environment. At this critical juncture of matter of life and death brought about by global water crisis, we need to make a serious soul-searching and ask a very thought-provoking question: Where do we need to find faults which have led us to the vortex of water crisis? And, most importantly, we need to ask ourselves another equally significant question: How and when will we wake up to take initiatives to correct the critical multi-headed-hydra-like water crisis situations which have overstretched to the extent of jeopardizing the lives of not only the present generation but also the lives of the generations to come?

In the Zambian capital of Lusaka, there is a very famous zoo. This zoo has a cage which does not have any animal but a very medicine. Not only this, it is also the bread winner of entire creatures on the earth. So there is no gainsaying the fact that we urgently need to conserve water.

Conservation of water starts from the check on the wastage of water. They say that saving a natural resource is tantamount to producing it. The agriculture sector which uses 70 percent of total accessible water on the earth is the biggest stake for us. No doubt, agriculture, the single most source of granaries, is root of the sustenance of the human beings but at the same time we need to be cautious to know that almost 60 percent of the total water volume used in farming is wasted through leakages. This puts heavy pressure on the underground water. The irrigation system requires to be supplied with latest scientific technologies and leak-proof infrastructural facilities. The agriculture scientists also must make a string of intensive researches into the possibilities of finding the genetically improved seeds which may give boost to the dry farming system so that precious and scarce water can be saved. Industries also need to work upon checking the wastage of water. Water used in the various industrial applications such as coolant or cleaning agent must be rationally used via installation of latest know-how, improved modus-operandi and an array of sophisticated technologies.

Effluents and industrial wastes and sewages require to be recycled so that they are not dumped into the rivers and lakes. Rain water harvesting may prove to be a significant conservation technique which can provide great relief to the people facing the acute water shortages.

A blanket ban on the deforestation and felling of the trees by the private contractors in the name of development of furniture industries must be exercised without any further delay by the government. There is an urgent need of accelerating the afforestation at a massive scale so that erratic and irregular nature of rainfall can be fast improved and water availability can be ensured sufficiently for WASH (Water for drinking, sanitation and hygiene) to the entire 7.5 billion population of the world.

Common masses too need to be woken up from the deep slumber to make them realize the importance of even a single drop of water. Leaving the water taps running for hours without any purpose is nothing less than a crime against the humanity on the earth. Until the people realize the adverse consequences of the waste of water of this sort, crisis would not likely to go sufferings are set to aggravate day by day.

Vying with the developed economies for the faster rate of growth of Gross Domestic Product sounds pretty heartening and no one can be skeptical of it. But with this lust of reaching out to the pinnacle of progress and prosperity, what we do not take pain to ponder over is the question which every conscientious citizen must ask himself - Will the earth sustain the burden of undying desires and ever-accumulating needs of the Homo sapiens? Next bigger question is no way less important - For how long will the earth sustain all these pulls and pressures wrought by man? Last yet the biggest question is - Are we ready to face the consequences when the earth gives in and finally surrenders to our whims and fancies?

Keeping in mind the vital and life-saving role of water in the sustenance of the mankind and the earth itself we must ask the aforesaid questions very seriously and try sincerely to answer and find their speedy solutions only today - otherwise we would not live for tomorrow to answer and find solution for them.

BUREAU OF OUTREACH COMMUNICATION: AN IMPORTANT STEP TOWARDS MEETING THE COMMUNICATION NEEDS OF THE COUNTRY

Narendra Kumar Sinha

Our Prime Minister believes in the mantra of "Reform, Perform and Transform", in bringing about good governance in the country. The vision is about transforming existing institutions into strong ones, capable of performing and delivering its mandate, thereby taking government to doorsteps of citizens. It is along the lines of this vision; Ministry of Information & Broadcasting has taken the reformative step of transforming its media units into modern day institutions. First important step in this transformation exercise is the integration of three media units of Ministry of I&B into one structure called as Bureau of Outreach Communication. This integration effort has been supplemented with simultaneous decentralization of administrative structure of the Ministry, by posting officers of various levels for manning the new positions created. A strong online system for designing the optimised media outreach, giving maximum value for money for a campaign focussed on target population has been developed to aid this transformation process. The online system takes into account cost of reaching per person, impact of communication strategy and strategy for inculcating behavioural change in target population.

BOC comprises three erstwhile media units of Ministry of I&B, viz namely Directorate of Advertising & Visual Publicity (DAVP), Directorate of Field Publicity (DFP) and Song & Drama Division (S&DD), all involved in interpersonal communication. The integration has brought down the number of offices from 36 Regional Units and 251 Field Units (all working in silos) into 24

Regional and 148 Field Units, working in unison across the country, leading to better and rational human resource utilization. The Regional Units will henceforth be known as Regional Outreach Bureau (ROB) and the field Units as Field Outreach Bureau (FOB). BOC will be headed by a Director General level officer from the Indian Information Service and assisted by Additional Director General in every Regional Outreach Bureau. The DG (BOC) will also be assisted in his functions by DGs in the zones.

From now on, communication strategies will no longer be Delhi Centric, but will be in the Regions where such information has to be disseminated. This integrated structure will create synergy between various wings of Government and will help in preparing integrated communication strategy to ensure mass reach and informed citizenry. This will also ensure that our engagement will now not be limited to the capital but reach every district in every State. This reformative step will ensure that campaigns will be prepared in the language, form and as per the requirements of the region, and to connect with the local population.

The online system of integrated Media campaign relies heavily on the inputs provided by client Ministries regarding their target audience and the information about reach and readership/viewership. The system impartially suggests the media mix for carrying out the desired campaign for the intended beneficiary. The online system would later graduate into an automated system of payment to news/TV agencies carrying advertisements, thereby reducing backlogs and ensuring timely payments.

The topic of Bureau of Outreach Communication was discussed in the Parliamentary Consultative Committee of the Ministry of Information & Broadcasting in its meeting on 13th March 2018. In its previous meetings, the members had pointed out the need to have an integrated communication approach, especially to deliver information about Government activities to rural hinterlands of India. These suggestions have been incorporated while BOC was formulated. The concept of Bureau of Outreach Communication and its Regional Outreach Bureaus were well appreciated by the members (Members of Parliament) of the Consultative Committee for Ministry of I&B, in its meeting held on 13th March 2018. The members also congratulated the proactive approach of the Ministry in reforming its media units, thereby enabling it to cater to the needs of the present generation and in keeping with the times.

The BOC is a much needed administrative reform, so as to ensure credible, consistent and clear communication across media platforms, providing a 360 degree approach. This integrated approach will enable the Ministry to address the different target audiences and their communication needs, thereby taking government to the door steps of the citizens. It is an important step towards modernizing and effectively utilizing the resources under Ministry of Information and Broadcasting to meet the communication needs of the country.
