CAREER IN FOREIGN LANGUAGES

Shreeprakash Sharma"Knowledge of language is the doorway to wisdom."*

—Roger Bacon

It is said that language is the soul of human being. It is also the most natural means of communicating and expressing what we feel so earnestly about. There is no gainsaying the fact that in the changing global scenario, especially in the post-transitional period of liberalization and globalization, the importance of foreign language has increased manifold which goes beyond any one's imagination. In the wake of the fast increase in the inflow of multinational companies, incredible hike in the foreign direct investment and the rapid rate of investment made by Indian companies abroad, the knowledge of foreign languages has started to be reckoned as a golden passport to a host of career opportunities in the country and abroad.

WHY SHOULD WE LEARN A FOREIGN LANGUAGE?

Learning foreign languages not only enriches our life style and enhances cultural ethos but also offers an unbelievable cornucopia of career alternatives and promising job experiences. We also succeed in having different perspectives and visions of life and the world around us. Our cognitive quality and life skills get very naturally improved. Getting a job at an international level also helps us have a lucrative income, global fame and international identity.

We learn the art of cultural tolerance, behavioral coherence and religious adjustment with people from different socio-cultural backgrounds. As per an international report, there would be requirement of more than 1.6 million foreign language experts in various segments of the job market in the coming two decades, especially when the multinational companies are so fast mushrooming across the world. The foreign language professionals are expected to get recruited in various BPO, IT and KPO in India. These professionals may also be recruited in the companies outsourced to India from the European countries.

As per the latest trend of global job market and corporate culture, the demand for professionals specialized in foreign languages such as French, Russian, German, Chinese, Portuguese, Japanese, Korean, Spanish is likely to soar at a rate never expected before.

NECESSARY ELIGIBILITIES

For getting a degree in a foreign language the aspirants must have passed the plus 2 examination from a recognized board. The duration of the bachelor's degree course is usually of three years. After the degree in foreign language the interested candidates can join the 2-year - Postgraduate course and thereafter Ph.D.

PACKAGE AND PERKS

Much like other genres and professional degrees and diplomas, foreign language too provides very high compensation when a candidate is more experienced. However, in the beginning a candidate is offered not less than Rs. 30,000 to 40,000 per month salary. Employments in foreign embassies and business consulates could also fetch the same amount of pay package but in case of jobs in the evergreen fields of interpretation and translation the same professionals may get considerably higher pay package. A skilled interpreter is offered between Rs. 1000 per hour to Rs. 25,000 a day. Translators may charge anywhere between Re 1 per word to Rs.10 per word. All these remunerations depend upon the nature of language and economic background as well as the brand name of the hirers and the organizations.

ENCOURAGING ENVIRONMENT FOR SMALL ENTERPRISES

Ashwani Mahajan

Small Enterprises have always had an important place in the Indian economy, may it be output, employment or exports. Apart from this, they have been vehicles of growth with equity and decentralisation. Therefore, economic policy should rightfully be targeted at promotion and protection of small enterprises. However, for more than two decades, this sector has been in a serious crisis. Closure of a large number of small enterprises has not only become a stumbling block in the creation of jobs, growth and development of the economy is also getting hurt.

Impact of Liberalization and Globalization

Industrial Policy adopted in the post independence period imposed various restrictions on large scale private industries; and industrial policy at that time became synonymous with 'License and Quota Raj'. While existing industries learned the art of living with this policy, the same policy created barriers for new entrepreneurs.

So far as the Small Scale Industries were concerned, the policy allowed SSIs to operate in the consumer goods sector and even many items were reserved for SSIs. Before the advent of the new economic policy in 1991, 812 items were reserved for production in the Small Scale sector. The New Economic Policy (NEP) storm mercilessly killed this policy of reservation. Similarly, Small Industries were given preference in government procurement as well, both in terms of price and purchase preference. Slowly these concessions to SSIs vanished in the name of promoting competition. It was said that reservation policy for SSIs comes in the way of development of technology and kills competition. Protection causes inefficiencies and country would not withstand international competition. It was argued that if we continue protecting domestic industry including Small Scale Industries, Foreign Investors would be discouraged and consumers' choices would also be hampered. NEP's arguments took precedence over arguments of employment, decentralization and equity favouring concessions to SSIs.

in their syllabi at secondary and senior secondary level so the students therein start learning them very early and, that too, without any special effort. But majority of students are also there who take steps to study foreign languages only after higher secondary with the purpose of pursuing the graduation and post graduation courses as well as Ph.D in them. ### HOW MUCH DOES ONE NEED TO SPEND?

In so far as the fees for the courses in foreign languages are concerned they vary from University to University and from Institute to Institute. However, the course fees in JNU and Delhi University are reasonably lower than other Universities and Institutes. The difference in the fees structure for these courses is subjected to the sort of language and the number of students opting a particular foreign language.

However, foreign languages such as Korean, Japanese and Chinese are reckoned as fairly tough and their institutes are also fewer, so they are available at very high costs whereas Arabic and Persian are commonly available at all Universities in the country and so these courses are offered at relatively lower costs. Roughly such courses cost anywhere between Rs. 2-3 lakh per annum.

SCHOLARSHIP AND FINANCING

In the wake of the high course fees for the study of foreign languages, there are various provisions of scholarships and funding by the Universities and the government. In this regard, Max Mueller Bhavan in India has a very attractive scheme which offers two scholarships to the two best students of advanced level learning of foreign languages. Similarly, Jawaharlal Nehru University has a marvellous exchange programme under which students are offered options to study in foreign universities during their regular study at JNU and vice versa.

Moreover, University of Delhi too has provision of scholarship the criteria of which are sheer merit and quality of the university results. However, the foreign governments like those of Korea and Japan have their own programmes under which they provide scholarship to the students who opt for the study of their respective languages.

JOB PROSPECTS

The learning of a foreign language opens doors to an array of job opportunities in the present dynamic global scenario of the world. It is not only a matter of having an ace up your sleeve and pride for the learners to possess the knowledge of a foreign language but it also equips an aspirant to better face the market of today's cut-throat-competition.

Academic degrees and proficiency of a foreign language prove to be an entry ticket to the ocean of job opportunities in the segments of tourism, education, diplomatic services, interpretation, translation, international trade and relations, entertainment, public relations, mass media and journalism, publishing, communication, embassies & consulates.

Multinational companies having their well-planned network across the nations in the world also recruit foreign language experts in various positions. Moreover, the internet revolution has also considerably helped increase the demand of foreign language professionals in the positions of online content writer, technical translator and interpreter. Various organizations, including the important agencies of the United Nations Organization (UNO), which require foreign language experts in large number, are Food Agriculture Organization, Ministry of External Affairs, and Reserve Bank of India.

However, some of the specialized fields of jobs for the professionals of foreign languages are in the areas of -linguistics, interpretation, translation and teaching.

THE FOREIGN SERVICES

In the modern open, global and politically-sensitive atmosphere of the world almost all the countries have embassies, business consulates in the countries across the world. These political organizations take care of the interest of their parent countries and so get valuable help in managing and boosting international trade as well as relations. The governments of the countries require foreign language speakers who are required to live abroad for the following assignments -

- Listening to foreign citizens, government and various other dignitaries,
- Reading, studying, translating and replying to intelligence findings and investigative reports in foreign languages.
- Establishing liaison with various departments in various countries.
- Conducting research activities in various foreign languages.
- Performing sundry jobs at the passport and visa issuing offices.
- Frisking and investigating passengers at the national and international airports, ports and places of historical importance.

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTES AND ORGANIZATIONS

Many of the UNO's agencies like those of World Health Organization (WHO), United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), United Nations Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF) and other international organizations like the Red Cross Society, Amnesty International and various others require foreign language experts to perform various assignments which are sine qua non of good management and sound administration. Besides English, other languages which are in more demand in these international bodies are French, Spanish, German and Arabic.

TOURISM AND HOSPITALITY INDUSTRIES

In the present world scenario, tourism has grown to be a very big business and nations with heavy crowds of tourists do always need foreign language experts who are capable of catering to the lingual needs of the foreign guests. Besides, hotels, restaurants, shopping malls, multiplex cinema halls and amusement parks need experts of various foreign languages to deal with foreign visitors. The entrepreneurs establish companies abroad and for this purpose they recruit foreign language experts to meet the lingual needs of the local cities and towns or host country.

TRANSLATION AND INTERPRETATION

Recently the modus operandi of communication and gaining of knowledge has undergone drastic changes across the world. We need linguists to translate the magnum opus of the renowned writers in a host of languages both for commerce and welfare purposes. The translated versions of books of the authors help them increase the sales very surprisingly and thus the profit goes up.

In context with the maintenance of foreign and diplomatic relationship the government officials and heads of nations make visits to various countries and for better communication they require interpreters in foreign languages. This profession of interpretation is lucrative. The interpreters visit various nations with the celebrities, and policy makers of the governments. So, this segment is also a highly prospective employment provider to the professionals of foreign languages.

TEACHING

Professionals specializing in the foreign languages are never short of an employment. Teaching is not only a decent job but also a prestigious platform to learn many more languages through consistent practice. Schools are appointing foreign language professionals for the purpose of providing foreign language education to students. Kendriya Vidyalaya Sangathan offers German education to children of its schools. Universities and colleges do recruit experts of various foreign languages as regular faculty members on their rolls.

The Prime Minister, Shri Narendra Modi, addressed the National Convention of Swachhagrahis on April 10 at Motihari in Bihar. The event was organized, as part of the centenary celebrations of the Satyagraha led by Mahatma Gandhi, in Champaran. He also distributed awards to Champion Swachhagrahis. Addressing an enthusiastic gathering on the occasion, the Prime Minister said that the atmosphere at Motihari, evoked the same spirit of mass movement, that marked the Champaran Satyagraha, a century ago. He said that in this journey of Satayagraha to Swachhagraha, the people of Bihar have shown their ability to lead. He noted the remarkable progress made in toilet construction in Bihar in the last one week. He appreciated the efforts of the people of the State, and the State Government for the same.

ENCOURAGING...

era of globalization did help us in getting number of goods and sometimes even technology, but at the cost of closure of millions of Small Enterprises, which couldn't face fierce competition from the rest of the world. Though, in some sectors like automobile, we do find some growth in ancillary small scale units; however, Small Scale sector in general faced extinction especially due to import flood from China. Huge import surge from China, not only caused huge burden of foreign exchange payment on the country due to heavy imports of toys, power equipment, mobile, computer and other electronics accessories, project goods, power plants etc., our industry and businesses were also destroyed, causing widespread unemployment.

How to Encourage 'Make in India'?

Though, there is hardly any doubt about dumping by China and its ill effects on India's Small Scale sector, it is equally important to understand that Chinese government provides most conducive atmosphere for the development of industry and entrepreneurship in China; and has turned China into a manufacturing hub of the world.

In India, costly electricity, outdated labour laws, complicated tax system, high rates of taxes, problems in getting finance, lack of infrastructure, laws inhibiting start of enterprise, inspector raj and perverted environment laws are some of the problems which have been coming in the way of healthy development of Small Scale Sector. Thus, we can say that not only the problems arising out of unequal competition from imports, there is a whole plethora of problems faced by them ranging from start of enterprise to the marketing of final produce.

Need for Separate Labour Laws

Nobody would deny the importance of protection and welfare of labour. Though, policy of unjustified 'hire and fire' policy is no good and we need to protect workers' interests; however, one can't justify same laws for big and small enterprises. Scenario has changed now and due to complex labour laws, Small Enterprises, instead of hiring regular labour, have started shifting to contract labour. Contract labour is exploited by the intermediaries and organic relationship between entrepreneur and the labour goes missing, affecting welfare of both entrepreneurs and workers. Given this problem, the Second Labour Commission gave an important recommendation to enact separate laws for Small Enterprises. Workers organizations also favoured such initiative. Sometime ago, a bill called 'Micro Small and Medium Enterprises Bill' was formulated. However, need to have separate labour laws for Small Enterprises remains.

Finance

Banks and other Financial Institutions feel that it's risky and cumbersome to lend to small enterprises. There is hardly any truth in this thinking, given the NPA crisis being faced by banks due to big loans turning bad. Due to this preconceived notions of banks, they try to avoid lending to Small Enterprises, even circumventing their legal binding of priority lending to Small Enterprises. Further, Small Enterprises get loans at higher interest rates, whereas big borrowers get loan at much cheaper rates and on more easy terms, without hassles.

After the current government took over the rein of power, it has tried to facilitate Small and Micro Enterprises through Micro Units Development and Refinance Agency (MUDRA), Start up schemes etc. Beneficiaries of MUDRA loans have not only employed themselves, rather they have created many more jobs.

Restricting Flooding and Dumping of Imports

Although foreign trade is a normal phenomenon in modern days, however, it has been a major cause for distress to Small Enterprise. Reason is dumping by some foreign countries, especially China. Central government has now started imposing Anti-Dumping Duty in a big way. In a written reply in Rajya Sabha, the then Commerce and Industry Minister Nirmala Sitharaman had said that Anti-dumping duty is in force on 93 products concerning imports from China. In addition, 40 cases concerning imports from China have been initiated by the Directorate General of Anti-Dumping and Allied Duties.

We find that the imposition of anti dumping duties on some items in the year 2016-17 yielded desirable results. Now since, on many other items of imports from China anti-dumping duty has been imposed, it is expected that imports from China will further decline. This would not only give reprieve to domestic industry, trade deficit with China is also expected to come down.

Preference in Government Procurement

In order to protect and promote small enterprises, there used to be a clear and comprehensive policy of preferential procurement from SSIs, which used to take the form of price preference or purchase preference. However, with the passage of time, these preferences were more or less weaned away.

A preferential procurement policy has been made by the government, implemented by making General Financial Rules (GFR). Rule 153 of GFR states:

"In procurement of goods for Rs. 50 lakhs and less, and where the Nodal Ministry determines that there is sufficient local capacity and local competition, only local suppliers will be eligible.

For procurements valued at more than Rs. 50 lakhs (or where there is insufficient local capacity/competition). if the lowest bid is not from a non-local supplier, the lowest-cost local supplier who is within a margin of 20 per cent of the lowest bid, will be given the opportunity to match the lowest bid.

It is expected that preferential procurement of domestic goods would go a long way in encouraging domestic industry in general and Small Scale Industry in particular.

Ending Inspector Raj

There are more than 40 laws applicable on SSIs and more than 50 Inspectors visit their factories, and many of them have wide ranging powers to penalize SSIs. Living under these threats, SSIs find it difficult to concentrate on core areas like production, marketing and up gradation of technology. There are many such laws which have lost utility in modern times, and there are many others which come in the way of healthy functioning of the economy in general and industry in particular. There is a dire need to end this tragedy. In this context the process has been started to repeal some redundant laws under the present government, for smooth functioning of the economy.

There is a need to facilitate new entrepreneurs by single window clearances of all types. Some states have initiated this process. As more and more state governments are going online, this process will further accelerate. Under new initiatives for Startups, online clearances are given.

Building Infrastructure

It's almost impossible to start and run Small Enterprises in a remote area. They are neither connected with rail or road; nor do they have assured source of power. Even in big and developed places, assured power supply is a big issue. At many places, generators are under rampant usage. This not only raises cost, but is a source of pollution and units equipped with generators are subject to exploitation by concerned departments' inspectors. There is need to develop infrastructure of various kinds including rail, road, power, skill development, markets (including e-portals) etc. Universal electrification of villages, boost being given to solar energy, fast track building of roads by the present government is expected to help promotion of small scale and tiny industries, especially in rural areas. E-procurements have also been started by the government.

By nature Indian people are entrepreneurs, hardworking and enthusiastic. They need conducive environment for entrepreneurship development. Much has been done by the government and much more is expected.
