PRADHAN MANTRI INNOVATIVE LEARNING PROGRAMME - DHRUV

EN Team

60 students from across India have been conferred the title of 'Dhruv Tara' after successfully completing the Pradhan Mantri Innovative Learning Programme - Dhruv - an initiative of the Union Ministry of Human Resource Development (HRD).

Dhruv was launched at the Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) Headquarter, Bengaluru on 10th October and concluded at the Indian Institute of Technology, New Delhi on 23rd October.

The students were broadly chosen from classes 9 to 12, from all schools including government and private schools. 30 science students were divided into 3 groups of 10 each and 30 performing arts students into 3 groups of 10 each. Each group from science stream was required to produce a project under the mentorship of experts from the field of science. Similarly, each group in performing arts was mentored by icons from the field of culture and was required to choreograph a programme. All the six teams were given themes on issues being faced globally like environment change, pollution, terrorism, etc.

The Vice President of India, Shri M. Venkaiah Naidu gave the DHRUV batches to all the 60 students selected under DHRUV programme during the valedictory function held at the Indian Institute of Technology (IIT), New Delhi on 23

October 2019. The Vice President lauded DHRUV initiative and said that it would kindle the fire for excellence and innovation in young people. Referring to the first batch of 60 DHRUV students- 30 of whom are exceptionally talented in science and 30 others are outstanding performing artists- the Vice President said, the collaborative efforts of DHRUV TARAS from science, mathematics and Arts streams under the guidance of their mentors will contribute greatly towards nation-building. "DHRUV TARA is one of the brightest stars in the sky. It serves as a guiding beacon to the travellers on high seas," he said.

Calling for institutionalization of DHRUV programme, the Vice President said that it should become a movement across the country. He said, there was also a need to create permanent forums like Science Museums, Science Labs, Dance and Music courses. "Theatre and art should be part of our school curriculum. I hope the Ministry will take up this task in the future".

Union HRD Minister Shri Ramesh Pokhriyal said that the programme represents the vision of the Prime Minister, Shri Narendra Modi while expressing hope that the programme will prove to be a turning point for the students as well as the society, and it is through their achievements that the world will know

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES IN AGRICULTURAL ECONOMICS AND AGRI-BUSINESS

Dr. Ramchandra

Indian economy is dependent on agro-based activities as about 65 per cent of the population living in rural areas is dependent on agriculture for their livelihood. A majority of them spend over 90 per cent of their earnings on basic needs such as food, fuel and health care. More than 50 per cent of the rural families with an annual income below Rs.11, 000, are unable to meet even these essential needs. Thus, in a developing country like India, economic development should ensure prosperity among the rural people.

Industrial enterprises and modern technologies no doubt can generate additional employment in urban areas and pay a rich dividend to elite and rich investors. However, this may widen the economic gap between the urban and rural population as well as between the rich and poor, resulting in greater hardship to the poor. Rural development and improvement in agricultural production are essential not only to ensure social justice but also to maintain self-sufficiency in food supply. With our population expected to exceed 1.35 billion, the annual demand for food is anticipated to rise from the present level of 195 m tons to 250 m tons by 2025 A.D. As food security is a pre requisite for economic progress, agro-based development programmes deserve priority.

OUR NATIONAL RESOURCES

Although the food scarcity is a serious threat there is good scope to convert this crisis into a business opportunity. At present, most of our natural resources are under gross neglect. Out of the total geographical area of 329 million hectares (M ha), over 175 M ha are classified as degraded wastelands. These wastelands are not only lying idle but are also posing a serious threat to our agriculture and eco-system. Forests are fast diminishing. As against the recommended 33 per cent geographical area under forests, only 12 per cent of the area is under tree cover. Deforestation continues unabated, as wood is used by over 80 per cent of the rural families for cooking food and about 65 per cent of it is collected free from forests and community lands. These large stretches of hilly terrain and neglected agricultural fields which are devoid of vegetal cover, cannot retain water. As a result about 75 per cent of the rain water runs off from the field resulting in floods, soil erosion, silting of reservoirs and river beds.

Out of 147 M ha cultivable land in the country, only 44 M ha are under irrigation and the rest of the area is dependent on erratic rainfall for crop production. As agriculture in low rainfall regions is risky, farmers are hesitant to invest in external inputs to optimize their crop production and thereby incur low yields. Although water is a critical input for agriculture, many farmers are ignorant about its judicious use and flood their fields. As a result of excessive use of water, over 9 M ha fertile lands have turned into saline wastelands. Thus in spite of significant progress in agricultural research, the average yield of food crops in India is only 1.5 tons/ha as compared to the World average of 3 tons/ha and 4 tons/ha in China. Selection of appropriate technologies and timely investment in essential inputs and infrastructure such as improved seeds, nutrients, plant protection, post production and marketing outlets can increase the food production by 2-3 folds, while helping the farmers to obtain a better price for their produce.

Livestock is another critical natural resource with a tremendous potential to provide employment and income to rural people. India has the world's largest livestock population. Out of 500 M heads, 204 M are cattle, representing about 17 per cent of the global total. There are 84 million buffaloes representing 56 per cent of the world population and about 200 M sheep and goats. Among the livestock, development of cattle for milk production can be a sustainable economic activity in rural areas. Cattle is maintained by all the sections of the society irrespective of their castes and income level and the demand for milk and dairy products will continue to increase during the next 20 years, till the annual production rises from the present level of 76 M tons to 150 M tons. The task is not difficult as the bulk of it is presently contributed by 5 M crossbred cows and about 10 M buffaloes, which represent only 15-20 per cent of the milk animals. While the crossbred cows yield an average of 6.5-7.0 kg per day and buffaloes yield 4.0 kg/day, the remaining 85 per cent indigenous cows yield an average of only 1 kg per day. The average milk yield of cattle in India is only 987 kg as compared to the world's average of 2380 kg/lactation. With breed improvement, better feeding and health care, it is possible to improve the production of the existing cattle and substitute with high yielding stocks. Cattle development is an extremely attractive occupation as with only three crossbred cows, a poor family can earn an annual profit of Rs. 15,000-18000 and improve their quality of life.

It is unfortunate that with all the natural resources lying idle, the custodians of these assets are also unemployed. As agriculture alone in non-irrigated areas cannot provide year round employment, most of the farmers including the large land holders are under-employed for over 6-8 months during the year.

In such a situation, there is good scope for introduction of appropriate technologies to conserve these natural resources which in turn can provide sustainable livelihood to the local communities. The developmental problems in rural areas are multi dimensional. The major areas affecting agricultural production and rural prosperity are lack of resources, appropriate technologies, inadequate infrastructure, skilled personnel and lack of confidence among farmers. Being poor, most of the farmers are not able to procure critical inputs on time and thereby end up with low yields. Even after successful cultivation, farmers often face marketing problems arising of surplus production, lack of storage and marketing facilities.

Thus the development programme should be promoted as an enterprise and the farmers should manage their farms as a business and not as a family tradition.

AGRI-BUSINESS

Introduction of management principles to operate agri-business on a pilot scale has paid rich dividends in the recent past. With such an approach, India can be the leader of the South countries. With plenty of labour, land and water resources along with tropical weather conditions, India can compete with other developed countries and capture the global market. With improved agricultural practices and water resources management, India can achieve food sufficiency by cultivating only 100 M ha and allotting the remaining 45 M ha for growing crops of commercial importance. These crops can be fruits, vegetables, flowers and medicinal plants having good export market. The surplus land can also be utilized to cultivate crops like maize and sugarcane and the produce can be diverted to industrial production of alcohol, a substitute for imported petroleum. Such industrial products having good demand can provide assured market and remunerative price to the growers. There is good scope to expand our agriculture in this direction.

MANAGEMENT SUPPORT

The agricultural development programme requires the following management support for enhancing its profitability:

Finance: Land development, irrigation systems and arrangements for marketing require huge investments. The present financial resources for agricultural development are neither adequate nor timely. Some of the activities such as water resource development and land shaping need soft loan. Additional finance with village level distribution network are needed for developing this industry.

Information Services: Information on new crops, technologies, systems and demand for the produce would help to optimise profits. The information services can also provide the latest know how and experiences with new varieties, new technologies, pest and disease outbreaks and their control.

Transfer of Technology : As a large section of the farmers are not adequately educated to make effective use of the technologies and information services, special efforts are needed to motivate and educate the backward farmers. This is expected to be carried out by the Agricultural Extension Officers. These field officers need to study the cost-benefit analysis of various crops and help the farmers to select suitable crops. For effective transfer of technology, these officers and field workers should be oriented from time to time. To enhance profits through cost reduction and better price recovery, human resource development should be an important component of the agri-business. This should start with confidence building in small farmers.

Marketing Services: Inadequate marketing network is a major bottleneck in agriculture. The farmers should be oriented to make a swift forecast of the demand for various commodities and exploit the opportunities. There is good scope for setting up market outlets to reach the customers without involving too many middlemen. Business houses can establish a direct link with farmers' organizations for procuring raw materials. Such agencies can support farmers with seeds of improved varieties, finance and other critical inputs for optimizing their crop yield.

Management Personnel: A critical input for successful agri business is dedicated personnel with managerial skills. The managers should be familiar with the local agricultural laws and socio-economic conditions of the region. The real challenge is to bring small farmers into the network of efficient producers, for ensuring their share in the success. India has no doubt provided opportunities for multinationals to participate in industrial development with new technologies and resources. However, we cannot neglect agriculture and expect economic progress sans rural development. The opportunities in agri business are enormous and can be easily encashed with locally available technologies.
