INTENSIFIED MISSION INDRADHANUSH 2.0 TRANSFORMING INDIA'S UNIVERSAL IMMUNISATION PROGRAM

Rashmi Kumar

The government has launched Intensified Mission Indradhanush (IMI) 2.0 which is being carried out between December 2019 and March 2020. The IMI 2.0 aims to escalate efforts to achieve that goal of attaining 90% national immunization coverage across India by plugging the loopholes with lessons learnt from previous phases. The programme will be delivered in 271 districts of 27 States and 652 blocks of Uttar Pradesh and Bihar among hard-to-reach and tribal populations.

The government has also launched IMI 2.0 portal that has been designed to capture information on the block wise target of children and pregnant women to be vaccinated during the IMI drive. The data will be entered at the district level. This will help the programme officers and administrators at the block, district, state and national level to have real time information on the progress of the campaign and also take timely action on slow progress in any particular area, according to Union Health Minister, Harsh Vardhan.

Salient Features of IMI 2.0

- Immunisation activity will be in four rounds over 7 working days excluding the RI days, Sundays and holidays;
- Enhanced Immunisation session with flexible timing, mobile session and mobilisation by other departments;

- Enhanced focus on left outs, dropouts, and resistant families and hard to reach areas;
- Focus on urban, under-served population and tribal areas;
- Inter-ministerial and inter-departmental coordination;

- Enhance political, administrative and financial commitment, through advocacy;
- The 4 rounds of Immunisation will be conducted in the selected districts and urban cities between December 2019-March 2020;
- After the completion of the proposed 4 rounds, the States will be expected to undertake measures to sustain the gains from IMI, through activities like inclusion of IMI sessions in routine Immunisation plans. The sustainability of IMI will be assessed through a survey.

How Mission Indradhanush has been incremental in increasing the immunisation coverage in India

Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, Government of India, introduced its Immunization Programme in 1978 as 'Expanded Programme of Immunization' (EPI). In 1985, the programme was Electronics have become as much a part of our life as oxygen, we will find them everywhere, the billboards, the phones, the computers, the refrigerators, the TV's and hundreds types of equipment's. We are surrounded by them, from plain jane devices, the devices are moving towards becoming smart, today we have vacuum cleaners, which, using the power of "Artificial Intelligence (AI)" can clean every corner of your home, we have a refrigerator that can be converted into a freezer or a fridge or vice-versa, we have devices that can control every device available in your home from any corner of the world, and this is just the tip of the iceberg, hence from necessities to comfort and to entertainment, electronics and communications rule the world. Engineering is one of the most versatile degrees spanning multiple domains ranging from aerospace to automobiles to healthcare to business & many more. Engineers are at the center of innovation and one of the most sought after professionals in the Country. They provide technological solutions to the problems, issues and ideas that affect every area of our lives and are responsible for technological advancements. Depending upon one's interest, one can specialize in multiple fields of engineering such as Electronics, Computer Science, Mechanical, and Civil & Aerospace amongst others.

Electronics and Communication Engineering is an ever growing industry in today's digital scenario. It is the utilization of science and mathematics applied to practical problems in the field of Electronics & Communication. It is due to Electronics engineers that we enjoy such modern communication devices as cellular telephones, radios and television.

Electronics and Communications Engineering (ECE) involves researching, designing, developing and testing of electronic equipment used in various systems. Electronics is the technology associated with electronic circuits and systems, and is one of the major fields that come under electrical engineering. They mainly work to integrate electronics and communications into any system they develop.

Electronics is now part of our everyday life, from the mobile phones to televisions, computers and even the high-end advanced satellites that are helping us to lead a smooth life. Ever since the evolution of technology, Electronics and Communication has become an essential discipline which is required by all the industries. Hence, Electronics and Communication engineering is one of the most sought after branches by students. Electronics and Communication Engineering has also penetrated into other areas like healthcare, instrumentation, automation, remote sensing, signal processing etc.

Possibilities abound in every sphere - astrophysical, energy and even biological.

In India, some of the common specializations for Electronics and Communication engineering are below:

- ♦ VLSI Design.
- ♦ Digital Systems and Communication.
- ♦ Opto-Electronics.
- ♦ Digital Signal Processing.
- ♦ Cyber Security.
- ♦ Software Engineering.
- ♦ Information Technology and Communication.

ELIGIBILITY

You can become an ECE ENGINEER in two ways:

After 10th, go for Diploma in ECE from a recognized State technical institute. After Diploma, go for Degree BE ECE. You will get direct admission (Lateral entry) to second year of B.E. based on your Diploma holders in engineering and graduates in Science with Maths as a subject with minimum 60% aggregate.

OR

The four year bachelor's degree course in electronics and communication engineering is opened to students who have passed plus two with Physics, Chemistry, and Maths (PCM). Admission to engineering degree programme is through an Engineering Entrance Exam i.e. JEE Main & Advanced.

SKILLS REQUIRED

If you are an ECE student, here are some of the skills and areas that you need to concentrate to improve your job prospects.

- ♦ Strong interest in technology. Computer proficiency is a must these days; try to get acquainted with some of the industrial grade software's.
- ♦ Develop communication and interpersonal skills.
- ♦ Stay updated with the latest technologies by developing projects on them.
- ♦ Do additional certified training programs to build your profile.
- ♦ Complex problem-solving skills and a methodical mind.
- ♦ Critical thinking.
- ♦ Strong IT skills.
- ♦ Time management and an ability to priorities and plan work effectively.
- ♦ Develop leadership and team working abilities.

SCOPE AND OPPORTUNITIES OF ELECTRONICS AND COMMUNICATION ENGINEERING

Studying electronics and communication engineering is the dream of every second aspirant due to a number of reasons - growth, job opportunities, salary range and continuous industry growth. The major driving force for the present day Information Technology revolution is the development in Electronics Engineering.

ECE students can develop an exciting career in industries like consumer electronics manufacturing organization, Telecommunication & IT industries, Health care equipment manufacturing, Mobile communication (2G, 3G, 4G) Internet technologies, Power Electronics, and other industries like steel, petroleum and chemical industry etc.

Graduates in Electronics Engineering also have lots of opportunities in Government and private companies in the areas of design, manufacture, installation, operation, and maintenance of electronics equipment and systems.

With the advent of latest technological innovations, new opportunities came into existence for electronics & communication engineers. The latest technologies include self-driving cars, autonomous drone logistics, robotics, automation in industries, smart energy systems etc.

But getting acquainted with these industries will not be easy as they demand engineers who are more hands-on with the latest technologies. With the recent advancements in technologies, most of the industries are beginning to adopt robotics, automation technologies, smart energy systems, Internet of Things (IoT) into their process. And a lot of these industries are established in Gulf countries, Germany, China, Canada etc. So students pursuing electronics & communication engineering have lot of job opportunities available, this is mainly because of the presence of various manufacturing firms outside India.

Electronics Engineers who are specialized in Control & Power Systems can find good opportunities in Japan, Germany, US & Korea. There is also a variety of job roles available in multi-disciplinary streams which an electronics engineer can take up.

Major Technologies in which EC Engineer can work:

1. Analog and Radio Frequency Circuits: Without these cell phones, Wi-Fi, television will cease to exist. A lot of industries are established to meet the consumer demands and in the process, they opened up lot of job opportunities for electronics engineers.

2. Communication & Signal Processing: This particular technology finds its application in transmission, storage and analysis of information signals.

3. Computer & Digital Systems: All the industries are able to advance technologically at a faster pace than before with the help of computers. These digital systems are everywhere from the smart watches to the mars rovers.

4. Networking: With the boom on the internet, we are experiencing 3G, 4G services which help the organizations and industries to easily collaborate with people. There is a lot of scope for engineers who want to work in this technology.

5. Computer vision & Image processing: These technologies are helping computers in the areas like medical, surveying, photogrammetry etc.

For instance, now we have medical devices that can analyze data to not only display images but identify diseases too with the help of magneto-resonance imaging technology.

6. Control systems & Robotics: With the advancement in the technologies lately more and more industries are adopting automation and robots into their operations to improve their efficiency. And a lot more industries are expected to adopt these technologies in the coming years.

7. Remote Sensing: Communication via radio waves is essential for mobile devices, radios, and all the devices that are connected to the internet. From mapping to navigation, remote sensing plays vital role in various technologies.

8. Sustainable Energy & Power systems: Now industries are investing lots of their money and time to develop more efficient solar cells, windmills, systems that can generate power from tides etc. This technology offers wide range of job opportunities for electronics engineers.

Thus, the scope for electronics engineers in the coming years is not going to come down, but what will be the most challenging criteria is the skill level of engineers that the industries expect. With more technological advancements, industries of now are demanding engineers who are more hands-on and can assist immediately in their process. To improve your job prospects you need to gain more practical skills in addition to your curriculum. For this, the best way to get skilled is to do learning by doing projects. When you learn and build projects you will not only learn the technical concepts but also get acquainted with the technology and develop a better understanding of them. You can attend any hands-on workshops or do some project-based courses to kick-start your learning of advanced technologies.

modified as 'Universal Immunization Programme' (UIP) to be implemented in phased manner to cover all districts in the country by 1989-90. India's immunisation programme is the largest in the world, with annual cohorts of around 26.5 million infants and 29 million pregnant women. Despite steady progress, routine vaccination coverage has been slow to increase. According to the National Family Health Survey-4 2015-16 (NFHS-4), the full immunisation coverage is around 62%. The factors limiting vaccination coverage include the rapid urbanisation, presence of large migrating and isolated populations that are difficult to reach, and low demand from under-informed and unaware populations.

Owing to such limitations, the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare launched a revamped immunization drive in December 2014 and named it as Mission Indradhanush. It aimed to target the most vulnerable, resistant, and inaccessible population. Between April 2015 and July 2017, around 25.5 million children and 6.9 million pregnant women were vaccinated. This contributed to an increase of 6.7% in full immunization coverage (7.9% in rural areas and 3.1% in urban areas) after the first two rounds.

Mission Indradhanush initially aimed to immunize unvaccinated and partially vaccinated children of the country against seven vaccine-preventable diseases. These diseases were identified as diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, polio, tuberculosis, measles and hepatitis-B. Later, the basket of vaccines was October 8, 2017. It aimed to achieve 90% Full Immunisation Coverage (FIC) with focus towards districts and urban areas with persistently low levels. IMI was built on MI, using additional strategies to reach populations at high risk, by involving sectors other than health. It was an effort to shift routine immunisation into a Jan Andolan, or a "peoples' movement". It aimed to mobilise communities and deal with barriers to seeking vaccines.

IMI had inter-ministerial and inter-departmental coordination, action-based review mechanism and intensified monitoring and accountability framework for effective implementation of targeted rapid. IMI was supported by 11 other ministries and departments, such as Ministry of Women and Child Development, Panchayati Raj, Ministry of Urban Development, Ministry of Youth Affairs among others. The convergence of ground level workers of various

Strategy and systems in rolling out Mission Indradhanush

According to the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, all children aged up to 5 years and pregnant women were targeted, with a focus on ensuring full vaccination for children under 2 years. Vaccines included in the routine immunisation schedule were given—namely, tetanus toxoid for pregnant women based on their vaccination status; and for infants, Bacillus Calmette-Guerin, oral polio vaccine and hepatitis B at birth or first contact after birth, three doses of pentavalent, oral polio vaccine and injectable polio vaccine between 6 and 14 weeks, measles or combined measles and rubella vaccine at 9 and 18 months, and DPT and oral polio vaccine boosters at 18 months. Three doses of rotavirus, pneumococcal conjugate, and Japanese encephalitis vaccines were also given between 6 and 14 weeks in areas where these had been added to the routine schedule. A chain of support was established from the national level through states to districts. Senior staff provided regular reviews of progress and received updates on progress.

An analysis done by Ministry of Health and Family Welfare in its paper published in the British Medical Journal (BMJ) titled—Improving Vaccination Coverage In India: Lessons From Intensified Mission Indradhanush, A Cross-Sectoral Systems Strengthening Strategy—showed that cross-sectoral participation can contribute to improved vaccination coverage of children at high risk. The ministry analysed that strengthening of the system and practice changes could make the program more effective. Sustained high level political support, advocacy, and supervision across sectors, together with flexibility to reallocate financial resources and staff were essential for success of Mission Indradhanush.

The paper recommended that districts must strengthen staff capacity to list household beneficiaries, add additional vaccination sites, and invest in the transportation required for both. Better communication and counselling skills tailored to local beliefs are needed to deal with barriers to seeking vaccinations.

Also, districts and primary care facilities work was must more effectively with non-health stakeholders by involving them early in logistics planning, communication, and messaging strategies, the ministry officials summed up. The ministry said that in rolling out the IMI, a seven-step process was developed to support district and subdistrict planning and implementation of IMI, with staff at all levels receiving training. Door-to-door headcount surveys and due listing of beneficiaries were conducted by facility staff (auxiliary nurse midwives), community based workers (accredited social health activists), and non-health workers (Anganwadi workers), and validated by supervisors for completeness and quality. Session micro-planning identified new sites for conducting vaccination sessions if needed, organised mobile teams for remote areas, and ensured that supplies were available.

Despite certain limitations and challenges, India has achieved groundbreaking success in eradicating/eliminating life-threatening vaccine preventable diseases by systematically implementing vaccination programmes. These include small pox, polio and more recently, maternal and neonatal tetanus. Despite persisting challenges such as a vast population, poor sanitation and hygiene, and a difficult geographical terrain that make containing outbreak of disease and increasing access to vaccines difficult. The Ministry of Health and Family Welfare has employed an effective approach - such as involving the community, seeking support from other Ministries and partner agencies, establishing an organised surveillance system, and employing mass campaign management strategies to reach every unreached child for vaccination.

With the launch of Intensified Mission Indradhanush 2.0, India has the opportunity to achieve further reductions in deaths among children under five years of age, and achieve the Sustainable Development Goal of ending preventable child deaths by 2030. By building on successes of the past, learning from challenges, and consolidating efforts across stakeholder groups, the country can fulfill its aim of attaining a disease-free India. Vaccines are a truly critical intervention in this journey, and are the key to safeguarding our present, and building a healthier tomorrow for our future generations.

expanded to cover 12 diseases including pertussis, meningitis and pneumonia (Hemophilus influenza type B infections), Japanese encephalitis (JE) in JE endemic districts with introduction of newer vaccines such as rotavirus vaccine, IPV, adult JE vaccine, pneumococcal conjugate vaccine (PCV) and measles-rubella (MR).

Launch of Intensified Mission Indradhanush (IMI)

Encouraged by the success of Mission Indradhanush and to further intensify the immunization programme, Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi launched the Intensified Mission Indradhanush (IMI) on departments like ASHA, ANMs, Anganwadi workers, Zila preraks under National Urban Livelihood Mission (NULM), self-help groups also ensured for better coordination and effective implementation of the programme.

IMI has contributed to a significant increase in fully immunised children in 190 selected districts in India. IMI showed that cross-sectoral participation can be effective in vaccinating children at the highest risk of infection. However, a number of systemic and practice-related changes, particularly with regards to the communications strategy, are needed for this approach to be even more effective.
