Identify the mistakes and rewrite the correct version of this passage.

When my parents finally reveal to me that my grandmother has battling liver cancer, I am twelve and I was angry--mostly with myself. They had wanted to protect me--only six years old in the time--from the complex but morose concept of death. However, when the end inevitably arrive, I wasn't trying to comprehend what dying is; I was trying to understand how I had been able to abandon my sick grandmother to favour of playing with friends and watching TV. Hurt that my parents has deceived me and resentful my own oblivion, I committed myself in prevent such blindness from resurfacing.
