

MIT Technology Review

Vol. 128 No. 3 May/June 2025

01/7/25
SB

Is "creativity"
meaningless?

Asteroid-blocking nukes

Building cities
with lava

Muse or machine? Defining creativity in the age of AI

Display until July 1, 2025

$10.99US $12.99CAN

06>

0 71896 01308 5

“How can we make art without friction?
How can we engage in a truly creative process
without material that pushes back?” –p. 24

The creativity issue

- 24 How AI can help supercharge creativity
The artists and musicians finding ways to make art with generative models' help. BY WILL DOUGLAS HEAVEN
- 32 Creative differences
Q&A: In The Cult of Creativity, Samuel Franklin excavates the surprisingly recent history of an idea, an ideal, and an ideology. BY BRYAN GARDINER
- 36 Replication and creation
New diffusion AI models that make music are complicating our definitions of human creativity. BY JAMES O'DONNELL
- 42 Atoms for asteroids
A nuclear explosion might eventually be Earth's only way to protect itself from a dangerous space rock. But preparing for that day without testing nukes in space means getting creative. BY ROBIN GEORGE ANDREWS
- 50 Generating architecture
Artificial intelligence is painting pictures, writing novels, making videos, and composing symphonies. Can it push the limits of what we build? BY ALLISON ARIEFF

Front

- 2 Letter from the editor
- THE DOWNLOAD
- 7 Bird-flu-detecting sensors; hot tubs heated by bitcoin; the surprising urgency of AM radio; air traffic control for drones; islands built with ocean currents; a new play about OpenAI; and the TR Bookshelf
- PROFILE
- 18 The new hotness
An Icelandic architect wants to build cities out of lava. By Elissaveta M. Brandon

Back

- 58 The story of the Armatron
How a 1980s toy robot arm inspired modern robotics. By Jon Keegan
- 64 Fighting drug overdoses with science
Could NIST's early warning system for new adulterants in street drugs help save lives? By Adam Bluestein
- 68 Generative AI is reshaping South Korea's web comics industry
It's unlocking new creative possibilities while fueling anxieties over agency and authorship. By Michelle Kim
- 74 Book review: The AI is present
Three books examine what we gain and lose when we let machines create. By Rebecca Ackermann
- 80 Discoveries and failures
New fiction by Alexandra Chang
- 88 The AI Hype Index
Our highly subjective take on the latest buzz in artificial intelligence.

Cover by Tom
Humberstone